Rev. C. R. Houston

Mission Committee: The definition for missions is the act of sending, or state of being sent with certain powers.

The field of missions is the world, and the need at home and abroad is to propagate the gospel to every creature.

The field is white to harvest and the world missions demands action on the part of every Christian, oral or written, in carrying out the Great Commission Jesus gave to His disciples.

In John 8:31, Jesus said, "... If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed."

Can you be a disciple of Jesus without being broad-minded enough to share in the propagation of the gospel to all people, race, color or creed, throughout the world?

May each minister, together with the church he serves, endeavor to advance in this great work of teaching, preaching and winning of souls to the Master. Missions is a universal obligation, inseparable at home and abroad.

Respectfully submitted,

New Enterprise Church and Pastor

Auxiliary Committee: "There is a river, the streams whereof shall make glad the city of God, ..." (Psalm 46:4).

The river in the Psalm can represent the church and the streams can adequately represent the auxiliaries of the church. The terrestrial rivers are dependent upon the tributaries, but the spiritual streams are dependant upon the rivers.

The church representing the rivers that furnishes the life of the streams or tributaries are the ones which furnish the joy. The auxiliaries of the church are channels of Christian service, and these channels are the sources of the joy of the church. The Sunday school is the channel of teaching, the league the channel of Christian training, the woman's auxiliary is the channel of social and spiritual service, and the prayer service is the channel of Christian fellowship, devotions and testimony. These are channels which every church needs, and without these the church is lacking and the body is subject to become shallow and ineffective.

We earnestly recommend that all our churches do everything possible to keep these tributaries flowing with all their subordinate strength as deep and wide as possible because they are the life lines of the church.

Respectfully submitted,

Rev. E. C. Morris, reporting for
Blakely Church and Pastor

Temperance Committee: As we think of the place where we live and the age in which we live, let us consider a recent report on 20,000 college students in which 80 per cent of them were slaves to the habit of drink.

Furthermore, we, as a committee, recommend that our church people do not park their cars in conspicuous places; also that we live more temperate lives in our homes and churches so we may prove to the world we are Christians.

Temperance does not always apply to things in a liquid form. We can be on the extremes in many ways, but Christians can always subdue their appetites.

Respectfully submitted,

Rev. H. L. Roberts, reporting for
White Plains Church and Pastor

Christian Education Committee: Solomon tells us in Proverbs 9:9, "Give instruction to a wise man, and he will be yet wiser: teach a just man, and he will increase in learning." We rejoice that our denomination is awakening to the urgent need of Christian education. We realize the importance of training in the home, the training offered by the various auxiliaries of the church, the Bible College, the youth camp, etc. Also we have noticed a great improvement in our denominational literature in recent years. Taking notice of these improvements not only causes rejoicing, but reminds us of the necessity of supporting Christian education. If we are to keep advancing in this field, we must back it spiritually and materially. Therefore, we recommend that each church actively support our program of Christian education.

While we realize that every Christian needs training for service, we want to stress in this report the need of training leaders, bearing in mind this truth: a personal relationship between Christ and the individual is the most important requirement for a teacher, an officer or any other leader in the church. We wish to bring out the fact that proper training makes a good leader a better leader. For this reason we recommend that each church conduct at least one study course during the coming year for the benefit of its leaders.

Respectfully submitted,

Macedonia Church and Pastor
