We, your committee on temperance, think that temperance is self control. You cannot be temperate unless you use self control. It will show by your deeds, actions, and dealings with your fellowman. Temperance is no back biting, hatred, malice or spite, slandering someone with unkind words and rudeness, it is turning the other cheek, going the second mile with meekness and kindness. The tongue is an unruly member full of deadly poison. The Bible says, "Fathers, provoke not your children to wrath." That is teasing, making sport of them in the presence of others, embarrassing them, even making them mad or cry. It will leave scars on their heart, that will last, and make them resent you. Of course, it means abstaining from alcoholic drinks. No matter how much your stomach hurts, there is temperance in eating as well. The Bible has pointed out that gluttonous is a sin. Be ye angry and sin not. Let not the sun go down on your wrath. Confess your wrong, get rid of it, and you will feel better.

J. R. Cates
James Moore
